

George M. Plews
Partner

George Plews has practiced for nearly thirty-five years as a successful appellate and trial advocate. He was lead counsel in the key cases (American States v. Kiger, Hartford v. Dana, Travelers v. Summit, Allstate v. Dan, Flexdar v. State Auto, FLM v. Cincinnati et al. and others) that have shaped Indiana insurance coverage law. George's environmental law practice spans a range of matters, including the prosecution and defense of claims involving state and federal environmental statutes, cost recovery claims, toxic torts and governmental enforcement actions. Resulting decisions that made new law include IDNR v. United Refuse, IDEM v. Chemical Waste Management and Cooper v. City of South Bend. George's litigation practice includes a wide range of other complex cases, including products liability, finance, class actions, and personal injury cases. He represented the State of Indiana in successful litigation against the tobacco companies, and was co-counsel in bringing some of the first class actions in the country challenging banks' incorrect handling of adjustable rate mortgages.

His yearly listing by "Best Lawyers in America" commenced in 2001 and in Indiana "Super Lawyers" in 2004. He has received "Super Lawyers" designation in both environmental and insurance coverage law. In 2011, he was named to the Top 50 Indiana Super Lawyers list and in 2012 and 2013 to the Top 10 Indiana Super Lawyers List. He was also named the Best Lawyers' 2014 Indianapolis Insurance Law "Lawyer of the Year." He was elected a fellow in the Litigation Counsel of American in 2010. In 2009, George was named a Distinguished Barrister by the Indiana Lawyer. He has an AV peer review rating by Martindale-Hubbell.

George has authored over 50 articles, including five published law review articles. He is a frequent speaker before legal, trade association & business groups, including ICLEF's "Masters" seminar series.
