OVERVIEW

Todd G. Relue concentrates his practice in the areas of complex litigation, environmental compliance, and commercial real estate with an emphasis on representing municipal clients in environmental cost recovery actions. He represents and advises businesses and public entities in environmental and insurance recovery matters at all stages of state and federal litigation. His broad real estate practice involves leasing, lending, construction, and acquisitions of properties from corner stores to multi-million dollar developments, with a focus on sites that have unique environmental concerns. He routinely guides public and private clients through the acquisition of brownfield sites, limiting their potential liability and clearing the path to redevelopment. He also regularly defends property owners in condemnation actions brought by state and local agencies.
